BEHAVIOUR MANAGEMENT

In 2014 we developed a way of working with students that aims to imbed Biblical values in children. Instead of having a set of rules in each classroom, we instead start with our ARCHER values and then say how this will be shown in the classroom and playground. We aim to focus on students doing the right thing and encourage children to understand how this relates to how God wants them to behave. We look at rewarding students who are consistently doing the right thing and provide feedback to parents when students do the right thing.

Each classroom teacher takes the six values and develops expectations on how students are to behave. There is also be a table in each class to show how the behaviours align with the school levels. Teachers will send out these expectations and tables of consequences at the start of the year. Parents will be informed if students get a level 2 or above.
